

Task:

The Headmaster would not have liked the content of this letter. It is far too negative about the school but it is also full of spelling mistakes. Which words would Dahl have been asked to write out again and again in order to learn the correct spellings? Correct his errors.

Dear Mama,

I am homesick. I'm takeing along time to settle in.

The matron is not kind to us. She has fair hare, is large and rules with a rod of steal. She can send us to the headmaster to be cained and she moves quickly down corridors like lightening, shouting "Who through that sponge?" She blamed pour Perkins for something he did'nt do the other day aswell. He had to go to the Head's office in his knight cloths.

All of the boys are now without there tuck-box keys. This is because one boy, I can't name him here, sprinkled castor sugar all over the corridor floor to get revenge on the matron. It was exiting. We could here her crunching down the hallway! We told him not to own up. We all kept quite even though we new we'd be in trouble. Arkle still feeds his frog through the hole in the lid of his box through. He feeds it slugs.

Please don't send me to meny parcels because the Head says we are not aloud these either.

Love from Boy.

Which words would Dahl have been asked to write out again? Find words that are homophones - words that have another meaning and spelling. Make sure Dahl writes the correct one.
